

INTERNATIONAL LUNCH TALK

FIRE – Female International REsearch

FIRE is an international and interdisciplinary network of female researchers, who hold senior positions in their universities and organisations. One goal of FIRE is to increase cooperative research with DHBW's dual partners.

FIRE-YA is the network for academically young researchers - either in the final stages of their PhD up to first positions as postdoc and lecturers. YAs are not expected to lead teams, departments or faculties.

FIRE and FIRE-YA currently has members from Germany, mostly professors from DHBW and Sweden in Europe and from Tanzania, Uganda, Rwanda, Botswana, Namibia and South Africa in East Afrika and Southern Africa.

Sabine Moebis and Yvonne Zajontz will introduce, who and what FIRE is, how to become a memeber in FIRE or FIRE-YA (FIRE Young Academics). They can tell you why you should or shouldn't join or work with FIRE, the interdisciplinary and international female researcher network.
